Forecast For Virginia-Fair Saturday, warmer north portion; Sunday, increasing cloudiness.

Among the curious Christmas presents of this year will be one for a man of national reputation, which has been all year in the making.

Way last January the present was decided upon, and a friend of the prominent gentleman requested the Burrelle Press Clipping Bureau, or New York, to watch every paper in America and to take up every liem which appeared concerning the man.

The clipping bureau people followed instructions, and now present the history ends just after election, and the 20,642 newspaper items found include everything from a hear in the life of this special man.

Petersburg, Va. May 31.
The trial of Mrs. Alma Gwaltney for the killing of her husband, Jasper Gwaltney, at Kenbridge, Lunenburg county, has been set for June 11. Mrs. Gwaltney, who was a resident of Petersburg, left the city on Saturday, October 14, for Kenbridge, where her husband was employed, and on the next day, Sunday, the 15th, as is alleged, she shot and killed her husband while the two were alone. She was arrested and sent on for trial, but where she has been confined ever since. Her defense, it is said, will be insanity. Several months ago, Judge Barksdala, of the Circuit Court, appointed a commission, consisting of Dr. Will to the proposition of the Circuit Court, appointed a commission, consisting of Dr. Will to the proposition of the Circuit Court, appointed a proposition of Dr. Will to the proposition of Dr. Will to the proposition of Dr. Will to the proposition of the Circuit Court, appointed and the proposition of the Circuit Court, appointed and Dr. Dr. Will to the proposition of the Circuit Court of Dr. Will the propo many years before any commercially feasible electric light had been discovered -in 1859 the British Parliament, after a thorough investigation of the gas lighting business in the leading English cities, established the principle that competition in such a public utility as illuminating gas IS ABSOLUTELY WRONG AND CONSTITUTES AN ECONOMIC CRIME AGAINST THE PEOPLE. And the British Parliament put a stop to such competition in the city of London by compelling the consolidation of all the existing gas companies (there had been six such companies at one time, with the intolerable nuisance of six parallel lines of gas pipes in many of the streets).

The "Annals" of the American Academy of Political and Social Science (Vol. II., March, 1892, page 702) says:

"The business of furnishing illuminating gas is, of necessi-The business of furnishing filuminating gas is, of necessisity, a monopoly. This fact is generally recognized in Europe, but has as yet been only partially accepted in this country. The history of various attempts to reduce the price of gas by the admission of competing companies shows that the effect of these on the price lasts but a short time, while the streets receive new lines of mains to increase the already great underground confusion, and the capital put in these mains is made. ground confusion, and the capital put in these mains is wasted.

"After a war of rates, competition ceases, and we find rates ligher; for the companies, when they agree to cease competition usually succeed in rearranging their capital in such a way as to convert into share capital the losses suffered during the

"The price of gas depends quite as much on the amount of capital invested per unit of product as on the cost of production. A LARGE PART OF THE COST TO THE CONSUMER IS THE INTEREST ON THE COST OF PLANT.

"The Massachusetts Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners has, in several instances, refused to allow a second electric lighting company to enter a field already occupied, and has laid down the rule that where one electric light company can hold the field, the consumers can be better supplied, and at a permanently lower price than if two were allowed to sink capital in duplicating the plant."

As public utilities (or public conveniences, public necessities, public services-call them what you will), WATER, GAS and ELECTRICITY are all in exactly the same class; and the principle of the futility and the PUBLIC WRONG of permitting competition in any of these public utilities, recognized and insisted upon by the British Parliament away back in 1859, and established as a rule by the Massachusetts Gas and Electric Light Commission efore 1892—and by many other State commissions since—applies to all such public utilities, everywhere.

In this year 1912, why should this modern, wide-awake, progressive city of Richmond even be asked to commit such an act of folly as to grant a franchise for a competitive electric light and power plant?
